As an example of a molded resin product produced by a process of the present invention, a transfer tape is mentioned. In a case of transferring a desired pattern, for example, a part of a printed circuit board or a like product using the transfer tape, a desired pattern is formed on the surface of the transfer tape. For example, in a case of forming a desired pattern of a conductive pattern on the printed circuit board by using the transfer tape, the transfer tape is laminated on the surface of the printed circuit board, and then a mask having a transparent region is placed on the surface of the transfer tape and a desired conductive pattern is transferred from the transfer tape to the printed circuit board. As a prior art process for producing a transfer tape having a conductive pattern formed on the surface thereof, a process of laminating a conductive pattern layer on a substrate and then transferring a conductive pattern layer to the surface of a base material is known. The process includes a process for producing a transfer tape for a flexible wiring board disclosed in Japanese Unexamined Patent Publication No. SHO-53-155920. In a case of producing a transfer tape for a flexible wiring board in the above process, after forming a conductive pattern layer on a substrate, a photocurable resin layer is formed on the conductive pattern layer, the photocurable resin layer is irradiated with a laser beam to cure the photocurable resin layer, and the photocurable resin layer is then peeled from the substrate. The above process comprises, however, a step for peeling a photocurable resin layer formed on a conductive pattern layer from the conductive pattern layer after the photocurable resin layer is formed on the conductive pattern layer, and, in some cases, a step for cleaning a surface of the photocurable resin layer after the photocurable resin layer is formed on the conductive pattern layer.
